AMERICAN PLANS TO BE TOLERANT

Government to Show Faith for Ultimate Triumph of Sane Democracy in Russia.

CONTROLLING SUPPLIES

Materials Go Forward But Are Under Supervision of U. S. at Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The American government is shaping what is described as a tolerant policy in dealing with Russia in her present straits, so as to show hope and faith for the ultimate triumph of a sane democracy.

It was declared today that even should the Bolsheviks conclude an armistice, it was appointed again, however, that these are under control at all times and can be prevented from falling into hostile hands.

In view of the attitude expressed here, it appears that should the inter-allied conference at Paris decide to send what has been described as a threatening communication to Russia, the American delegates must not subscribe to it. Of course their action will be finally determined by the nature of the communication which may be sent.

ANARCHISTS FILE THEIR APPEALS

Supreme Court to Review Convictions of Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—In briefs filed with the supreme court today supporting their appeal from convictions for conspiring against the draft law, Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, declared the paramount question before the court is whether those who claim conscientious objection to participation in war may be made to suffer penalties for their views. Various other legal contentions are advanced, among them that the law is a species of "despotism" and "tyrannical power."

DEATH SUMMONS FORMER SENATOR

William Eaton Chandler, Often Called "Father of New U. S. Navy."

YEARS IN SENATE

Praised by Tillman as One of Ablest Men in Upper House.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 30.—William Eaton Chandler, who as secretary of the navy in President Arthur's cabinet was largely responsible for the beginning of the modern United States navy, died at his home here today. While in Washington last March Mr. Chandler was stricken with illness. He was able to return to New Hampshire later and spent the summer at his country estate in Waterloo. This fall he came to his home here where his health steadily failed.

Lifetime of Activities

In a lifetime of endless political activity and almost continuous controversy, the one title freely accorded by men of all parties to William Eaton Chandler was that of "Father of the New United States Navy." As secretary of the navy under President Arthur, Mr. Chandler, on June 11, 1883, approved the plan for the reorganization of the navy which resulted in the development of the present fighting fleet. In a speech in the senate on January 26, 1915, Senator Tillman of South Carolina, referring to the reading into the record of a letter from Mr. Chandler regarding the naval bill then pending, said:

"Senator Chandler has had a varied experience in naval affairs. He was secretary of the navy under President Arthur, and really began the construction of the new navy. He was on the naval committee when I first came to Washington in 1896, and was at that time one of the ablest men in the senate. Although he has recently entered his eightieth year, his mind is still alert and vigorous. While he is a republican and I am a democrat, we have always been warm personal friends. Necessarily he is better posted on naval affairs than almost any man in Washington, not excepting even the navy department itself."

Praised by Tillman

This praise from so prominent a democrat was peculiarly significant, inasmuch as the democrats were very slow to forgive Mr. Chandler for the part he played as a member of the electoral convention in placing Rutherford B. Hayes in the White House. Democratic revenge was wreaked when the senate, in 1881, refused to confirm President Garfield's appointment of Mr. Chandler as solicitor general. Born at Concord, N. H., Dec. 28, 1835, Mr. Chandler was educated at academies in New Hampshire and Vermont and was graduated from the Harvard law school at the age of 21. One of his classmates at the law school was Joseph H. Choate. He entered politics at once, served three terms in the New Hampshire House of Representatives and was elected speaker of the house when but 27 years old. His first entrance into national political affairs was as one of the founders of the Republican party and a supporter of Abraham Lincoln. President Lincoln appointed him solicitor and judge advocate general of the navy in 1865, and three months later he became first assistant secretary of the treasury.

While secretary of the navy, Mr. Chandler organized the expedition which, under the command of Captain Winfield S. Schley, went to the relief of the Greely arctic exploration party.

Fourteen Years in Senate

Fourteen years of service in the United States senate ended when Mr. Chandler was defeated for renomination in 1901 by Henry E. Burnham. His radical views on railroad legislation, which brought him in opposition to the republican party leaders, were responsible for this defeat. During the remainder of his life Mr. Chandler made many attacks on what he considered the undue influence exerted by railroads in New England politics. His last federal position was that of president of the Spanish War Claims commission, to which he was named by President McKinley in 1901 and reappointed by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Chandler's legal talent was displayed when, as chief counsel, he carried through many stages in state and

NO PREDICTIONS ON WILSON POLICY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—President Wilson continued to work on his address to congress today and the fact that he had before him a great quantity of material bearing on relations with Austria caused some speculation as to whether he would touch on the subject. Official intimations of what the president would say still were withheld. The fact that he is holding the address open to the last minute probably so late advance copies may not be available until he starts to speak, but accurate predictions out of the question. One official today said the problem of whether the government should declare war on Austria was not so easy of solution as it looked to the average citizen.

Cannon Would Wage A Vigorous War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Prompt and suitable appropriations by congress for prosecution of the war were predicted today by former Speaker Cannon upon his return from the new session.

"Sentiment as far as I can observe," he said, "is for a vigorous prosecution of the war to bring it to a successful end as early as possible. The financial needs will be great both of ourselves and our allies. Of course we can't provide for the whole shooting match, but congress will respond adequately to the needs of the situation."

Theaters

AT THE ORPHEUM.

The Ogdens people who attended the Orpheum yesterday gave hearty thanks for one of the most enjoyable vaudeville bills which have been presented this year. The whole program is a corker. The headline act, "Oh, You Devil," is immense and not one of the others has a dragging moment. This bill, in most everyone's opinion, is the best that has been presented this year. Starting with a strong curtain raiser and ending with a short act, "Oh, You Devil," the bill is well filled out in every particular.

Clay Crouch is seen in "Oh, You Devil," and this boy is certainly a knockout in the realm of black face stuff. He is supported by a very able company, and a chorus of surprisingly comely girls. Crouch gets out in front and fraternizes with the audience after the fashion of Al Jolson and gets by with some of the keenest mirth heard in a long time. His imitation of a colored gentleman in and out of Hades is very good.

Maxine Parrish is a second edition of Eva Tanguay and about the only imitation who has been in this country who is really good. She has a collection of nonsense and Tanguay tricks, which class her as a wonder. Maxine is full of pep and going strong all the time and she gets the audience on edge with joyousness at her funny capers.

A "Friendly Call" is the title of a little Irish sketch introducing Charles E. Nelson, Charles B. Mack and Edna Bostedo, three characters hard to beat for the work. This is one of the most characteristic and "truthful" Irish sketches on the Pantages circuit and the audience laughs and weeps in turn at the humor and pathos. An Irish bagpipe is introduced for the playing of a reel.

The Dumitrescu-Ben Dunham troupe of aerial gymnasts is one of the cleverest curtain raisers seen this year. Two women and two men are in the cast and they present a variety of trapeze, horizontal bar and tumbling stunts which are amazing.

Lane and Harper present a sketch, "The Man and the Manicure," which was very well received. They sing a little, tell a few jokes and cut up generally in a laughable manner. The lady is fetching and her partner a good match for her.

Neil McKinley seems to be the original ant, the "kernel of the nut," as he dubs himself. This body gets right down into the audience and shakes hands. He sits with the ladies and jokes with the men and walks back and forth on the piano and stage and handles himself generally as a candidate for the nut prison. He has some funny jokes and some funnier songs and tells and sings 'em with rare ability.

The Mutt and Jeff picture cartoon tops off the bill in a pleasing manner.
